[Written for the Oregonian.]

A Romance of the Long-Tom in 1848.

BY JOAB BEAVER [illegible]

The following exciting story was written by some youth who lives in "the forks," expressly for the OREGONIAN:

Friends, please give me your attention for a few moments, while I relate to you an adventure which happened in the early settlements of Oregon, and in doing so, I will endeavor to be brief; not taxing your patience with an endless chain of marvelous adventures or hair-breadth escapes, nor ask you to expand your bump of imagination while we soar to the utmost peak of Mount Hood and from thence down through gorgeous canyons to the lowermost bottom on the Columbia river. We will confine ourselves within the bounds of reason and truth. There are but few Oregonians who do not know where that beautiful stream is, known as the Long-Tom. It heads on the north side of the Calapooia Mountains, and wends its way down one of the most beautiful and fertile valleys of Oregon, entering into the Willamette river some distance below where now stands the flourishing village of Eugene.

At the time of our story, (for it was in the year 1848,) this country was almost entirely unsettled. Only here and there could be seen the rude hut of some drover or hunter, who was reaping his golden harvests off the bountiful fields of nature. The place we would call your attention to, is the head of the stream alluded to.

It was in the month of August, the sun was fast closing in the western horizon, and the beauty of the day can only be imagined by those who have been in Oregon at this season of the year. At this one spot the hills come in close contact, leaving only a narrow valley of about half a mile in width, the mountains serving as a barrier to keep out the stormy winds of winter, while in summer the cool north winds fann it with refreshing healthful breezes. A spot too lovely for my limited pen to describe.

Making their way down, the north-east side of the stream, at the spot just described, might have been seen two young men. The one in advance led a Cayuse horse, which was heavily packed, one would judge, from the enormous bulk, but so scrupulously concealed beneath a canvas tent that it would be impossible for the closest observer to form any idea of the nature of its contents. This young man was dressed in a garb somewhat resembling that worn by the miner of the present day, and to his belt was suspended a six-shooter and a large hunting-knife. He was something above the medium height, and straight as an arrow. His eyes were of a dark blue, high forehead, hair dark and slightly curling; but his handsome features wore a troubled expression, and from his agitated manner it was quite evident that something unusual had happened, for he was already going at double-quick time and still vainly endeavoring to urge the weary Cayuse to a quicker pace.

The other was strolling along leisurely and apparently unconcerned, some distance in the rear. He was dressed like the other, but forming quite a contrast in other respects. His form was slender and illy shaped. His eyes were small and of a dull gray; low forehead, and hair coarse, straight and of a redish cast. It was plain to be seen by his countenance that he was of a low, sneaking, if not brutal disposition. But we will listen to their conversation a few moments and see if we can glean any intelligence as to their future intentions:

"Thomas," spoke the latter, "I think we had better camp here to-night. You see the sun is getting low, and we may not be able to find another favorable spot."

"Oh! no, Robert," replied Thomas. "I cannot think of such a thing, for they may be yet a long way ahead, and should I lose her, I am ruined," exclaimed the young man, passionately.

"Well, just as you please," replied Robert, "but I would not make as much fuss as you do if I lost her fifty times." This rude speech brought tears to the young man's eyes, but he deigned no reply, and in silence they pursued their way. They had not proceeded far until it began to cloud up in the west, and the echoes of thunder and flashing of lightning in the distance gave evidence of an approaching storm. In half an hour the sun was down, the rain began to descend in almost a solid sheet, and the darkness was impenetrable. All at a sudden there came a terrific flash of lightning, and Thomas, letting go his reid, darted off in the darkness. In vain Robert shouted, but received no answer. At length, growing weary with hunting for his companion, he unpacked his horse, and taking his blankets, crawled under a clump of brush and in a few moments more was sound asleep. When he awoke next morning, the sun was shining full in his face. He arose, and imagine his surprise on beholding Thomas standing near him, holding by the foretop an old gray mare.

"Well," exclaimed Robert, "now I hope you are satisfied; you have found your old mare."

WAR GOSSIP.—The London Times calls our civil war a ghastly duel.

Charleston played the duce—and it wasn't a trump.

The Confederacy, considering how little [illegible] it can get, staggers awfully.

The further General Sherman goes, the faster he goes. He is geometrical progression.

Men called Alexander crazy. Some of them called Sherman crazy too. These madmen are terrible fellows.

We had no idea that South Carolina would ever love Sherman, but, strange to say, she has had him in her very heart.

Glorious victories are so common that we hardly notice them more than we do the glorious stars in the sky.

So many dirty guerrillas have passed over the soil of Kentucky, that the Federal troops ought to scour the State.

The use of cannon, rifle and bayonet against a people may never win their love, but it often wins their respect and obedience.

The South Carolinians may not belong to the association of "The Straightouts," but their shirt tails do.

There seems to be a great confusion of seasons in the South. Savannah, Branchville, Columbia, Charleston and Wilmington, have had their Fall in the Winter.

Gen. Sherman once taught the people of the South the art of war as professor of a military school in New Orleans. He is now teaching it to them with practical illustrations.

The Augusta Chronicle calls upon the Southern people to spring forth like the forest leaves. They may spring forth as thickly, but most of them may wither on the ground as early.

"Carleton," of the Boston Journal, procured the slave auction block of Charleston and intends to have Gov. Andrew make a speech from it. He also brought home the locks from the iron doors of the slave pen.

Gov. Brown, of Georgia, described the present situation of the rebellion very accurately. He could not do it better from a Northern point of view: "The night is dark, the tempest howls, the ship is lashed with turbulent waves, and the helmsman is steering to the whirlpool."

WAS IT CLAIRVOYANCE.—The Golden Era, of San Francisco, publishes the following, which was furnished to it as facts by a correspondent:

On the evening previous to the consummation of the late damnable iniquity which [illegible] the Nation, the wife of one of our respected citizens, living not a thousand miles from Howard street, suddenly started from her slumbers. In answer to the questionings of her husband, she stated that she thought they were witnessing a performance in Ford's Theater, Washington city, and that she had received a murderous blow [illegible] behind on the head. The sensation was so [illegible] that it was with much difficulty that her husband quieted her again to sleep. [illegible] had elapsed she once more sprang up in [illegible] alarm, and glancing furtively over her shoulder, exclaimed "It's Wilkes Booth!" The [illegible] had been repeated, and this time she had caught sight of the face of the assassin. Now it is known that these persons have for years been family intimates with the murderer Booth, that whilst in Washington he always made their house his home, and none in the land could have been a more honored guest than he. I submit the occurrence to your disposal without elaboration, simply requesting room for its publication, with my honorable endorsement of its strict veracity.

The Daily Oregonian.

[illegible] the Red White and Blue
With its Stars and Union unbroken and true!
[illegible]
[illegible]

WEDNESDAY MORNING, MAY 1[illegible]

Probably the Last Campaign

Gen[illegible] W[illegible] [illegible] we have lately heard [illegible] the last campaign [illegible] to make [illegible] Sherman, in his march from Atlanta to Savannah with 60,000 men, demonstrated that the rebel Confederacy was a shell easily punctured by a resolute general. Wilson has taken a lower line of march, and accomplished results that would have been deemed wonderful had they been effected but a few months since. His force could not have been over 10,000, judging by the reports we have had of his operations, but he has effectually destroyed the remnant of Confederate power left towards the Gulf, scattering the rebel armies that opposed his march, making captures by the thousand, and destroying not only the remnant of power but an enlisting railroad stock, machine shops, foundries, factories and all the supply depots that had furnished the munitions of war to the rebel government.

Many important places were carried by assault. Selma and Montgomery, in Alabama, are towns of note; the last had been at first, and for awhile, the seat of Government of the bogus Confederacy. Wilson's march left no remnant of rebel arsenals behind to run for future aid and comfort to possible rebel struggles. Hundreds of works lately busy with hostile intent were burned; hundreds of thousands of bales of cotton were given to the flames, generally by the rebels themselves, who have been fond of celebrating their own defeats by illuminations at their own expense. Not the least of the accomplished [illegible] was the capture of such rebel Generals as H[illegible] Cobb, Gustavus W. Smith and others of whom we have had frequent report in times past. A march of nearly 500 miles through a hostile country, made so leisurely by so unimportant a force as Wilson had, with a total loss of only [illegible] in killed, wounded and missing, would have been received as fabulous and read with an eagerness six months since, that cannot be expected now. Yet the fact of its accomplishment accompanied by so many favorable results, fixes the claims of General Wilson to some distinguished ability, for it will be a part of the war that will be fully recorded, and as forming, perhaps, a brilliant close to Union campaigning, will be ever read with interest.

Everywhere the Confederate cause seems to have melted away, and the only forces we hear of are straggling guerillas who infest portions of the South, and will do as much damage to their friends as to their foes. Army, they have none unless it be beyond the Mississippi. The taking of Richmond pricked the bubble, and suddenly the Southern generals and politicians have discovered that peace is preferable to war. It is to be hoped that the people have come to the same conclusion and will not follow such leaders longer. It seems that Alexander H. Stephens went home after the unavailing interview at Fortress Monroe and renounced all connection with the Confederacy. He was satisfied that no terms could be made with Lincoln so long as Davis had to be consulted in the making of them. He saw ruin close upon them, and sure enough it has had its fulfillment. At that time the President and Secretary Seward were disposed for peace, confident as they were of the result, they did not anticipate such a triumph so speedily. This was the time for the rebel leaders to have promised the disbandment of their armies and the cessation of the cruel war. Such a promise would have ensured them life which they could have enjoyed with the ill gotten spoils they had before stored away in foreign lands. They were blind leaders of the blind and have fallen into the "last ditch" instead of dying there as they threatened. Heaven grant that the last campaign is ended!

The Seven Thirty Loan.—It is well known that Jay Cooke, of Philadelphia, some time ago, by authority of the Secretary of the Treasury, assumed the management of the subscription Agency for the sale of the notes for the popular 7-30 loan. We publish to-day his advertisement containing fuller information in regard to the loan than many before possessed. Every citizen ought to make himself acquainted with this new system. In the East the good results of its operation have surpassed all expectation. For money it is an investment both profitable and safe. It is a novelty in finance in that not only capitalists but all classes purchase the notes. It furnishes the noble example of a whole people illustrating their faith in their Government by investing in its securities. Nothing of this kind has ever before been known. A Government that rests so firmly on the faith and confidence of the people, can never be overthrown.

The notes of the 7-30 loan are exempt from State taxation. This will give them an additional value. The interest on them, as their name indicates is seven and three-tenths per centum payable semi-annually. If converted into U. S. Gold Bearing Bonds, as they may be at the end of three years, it may reasonably be asserted that the whole profits will be more considerable than can be realized from any other investment of money where, as in the present case, there is no risk of loss.

State Items.—Monteith & Co. have commenced work for the erection of a large merchant flouring mill at Albany.

H. N. George, Esq., Presidential Elector, has returned from Washington.

Company H, First Oregon Infantry have been ordered to Camp Watson in the Snake River country.

Senator Williams seems not to have left Washington with Senator Nesmith, as the latter has arrived in Cal[illegible]. The probability is Senator Williams will [illegible] the present year.

It is reported that several mule trains have been run off by Indians from the vicinity of Burnt river. That trick has been done before from the same locality. What is to be done?

We learn that Mr. Whittlesey, Assistant Superintendent in the telegraph line from here to Marysville, has gone by land to the Dalles to form an opinion as to the practicability of building the line up the Columbia river to that point and secure subscriptions [illegible] to secure its completion.

Wilson's Raid through the Shell from Alabama to Savannah.

New York, May [illegible] A Savannah letter [illegible] April 29th says Gen. Wilson's expedition [illegible] yesterday [illegible] history of the trip.

Left Chickasaw, Ala. [illegible] of March. The first engagement with Forrest was at a place called Ebenezer Church, near Plantersville, Ala., in which Wilson fought and routed him, and his force was driven west of Cahawba. Wilson [illegible] Selma, Ala., 240 miles from [illegible] was captured April 2d, with 12 guns in [illegible] the arsenal and three rolling mills with fixtures for a very large naval force. The [illegible] Powder works, magazine [illegible] of cars were destroyed.

Wilson [illegible] The Alabama was bridged [illegible] feet [illegible] Montgomery was the next point at which [illegible] but it surrendered without an assault. We destroyed two rolling mills and [illegible] arms, sixty-three cars, [illegible] and five steamboats. The rebels burned 85,000 bales of cotton before the evacuation. [illegible] distant was taken by assault after dark on the 16th. Here we captured 1,200 prisoners, [illegible] guns, 100,000 bales of cotton, immense quantities of ordnance, commissary and quartermaster's stores, and destroyed large cotton factories, also the [illegible] accouterments, a pistol factory, a naval foundry, 15 locomotives, 100 cars [illegible] and the machine shops and one gun [illegible].

A detour was made to West Point, which was carried by them. The garrison numbering [illegible] men with four guns was captured. The rebel General [illegible] was killed. We destroyed [illegible] motives, [illegible] bridges [illegible] and also a large quantity of Quartermaster's stores at Griffin and all bridges on the Selma and Montgomery railroad. Macon was taken without opposition. Here Generals Howell Cobb, Gustavus W. Smith, [illegible] and Maj. [illegible] M. Gall were captured. In the assault on Selma, the Second division charged over the works in splendid style, carrying everything before them. The enemy's forces were [illegible] the assault [illegible] thousand two hundred [illegible]. Our loss [illegible]. The enemy [illegible] state their loss at between four and five thousand [illegible] the expedition was only 340. A total of 180 miles was marched in twenty days.

The Last of Booth.

Washington, May [illegible] The [illegible] says: The statement detailing the mysterious manner of finally disposing of Booth's body are untrue, and says that Col. [illegible] and [illegible] are the only two persons living who know what disposition was made of it. They are under oath to reveal the place to no human being.

New York, May [illegible] The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Press says that the [illegible] and the documentary evidence found on Booth's body [illegible] and the [illegible] and its full sanction upon Jeff. Davis and his Canada Commissioners.

A WORD ABOUT CARELESSNESS CONCERNING FIRES.—The fire of Sunday last was almost due to the work of [illegible] being of matches in a carpet sack [illegible] and other indications show it to be the true cause, and as it has frequently occurred before, a word of warning should be said to people careless enough to [illegible] matches about premises [illegible] little combustible, and [illegible] danger [illegible] in this case [illegible] great heat and then [illegible] a pulp on the end [illegible] substance thrown in [illegible] ple neglect [illegible] should be allowed [illegible] law, without being [illegible] count, or both [illegible] occupants for every [illegible] since the revolution [illegible] fire at the corner of Washington and [illegible] of similar origin. And [illegible] the store of J. B. Brooks [illegible] from matches in the [illegible] fortunate in respect of fires [illegible] that fire department, the [illegible] heavy sacrifice [illegible] Will the Council take note of this.

NEW STEAMER BUILDING.—[illegible] is on the way [illegible] East Portland. The keel [illegible] laying last, and as the frame [illegible] she was set up yesterday. [illegible] James Hense has the [illegible] of this boat. She is to be [illegible] length 12 feet, beam [illegible] She is to be propelled by [illegible] driven by a forty-five horse power [illegible] steamer will be ready for [illegible] will make regular trips to [illegible] the above is getting [illegible] same description [illegible] 12 feet long, 26 feet [illegible] hold. No owners are yet [illegible] we understand she will run [illegible] Capt. Ankeny [illegible] is about ready to launch [illegible] trip to Salem by the first of [illegible] only on the river without [illegible] not more than ten inches of water. The [illegible] for the Stark street ferry [illegible] Westport; she will be 85 feet long, 27 feet beam [illegible] inches hold. This will be the first [illegible] that ever builders the Pacific coast [illegible] if the builder is successful [illegible] the naval back and [illegible] by moving naturally [illegible] The boat is expected to be in running order by the 1st of July.

A CANADIAN SKEDADDLER.—We lately gave a short account of the departure from Victoria, of Wm. Culverwell, late Deputy Sheriff, and general agent in Victoria, not [illegible] behind him heavy liabilities, but also taking with him large sums of money belonging to different persons in that place. We now publish further particulars relating to the absconding officer's conduct. Mr. John [illegible] of Victoria, went on board the [illegible] Wright, to [illegible] Culverwell represented that his business in Portland was to apprehend a former absconder from the other side." Mr. Allen saw Culverwell [illegible] undertook to warrant him [illegible] "I have [illegible] yourself." Culverwell replied, "No, I have too much at stake in Victoria to run away." [illegible] to be poor, and on parting with Mr. A. said, "I shall see you again." Nothing is positively known of the route taken by the runaway, but it is supposed he had gone to the upper country. On the day after his arrival here he was known to be making efforts to purchase a saddle. Culverwell is reported as being a man who always took occasion to wound and injure the feelings of those who, in his official capacity, misfortune placed within his power. There are [illegible] gentlemen here in pursuit of him, and we hope they will succeed in making the capture.

DEATH OF MR. AVERY.—Mr. Wm. H. Avery, whose death is noticed in another place, has been with us but a few months. He came with the determination of making this city his future residence, and has labored untiringly to overcome difficulties incident to the full establishment of his business affairs before making himself well known in community, when he [illegible] just as his plans were beginning to promise a reward [illegible] He has been fought against and [illegible] to the last assured his acquaintance, and [illegible] has been and kindred, his family, in their bereavement, has a large circle of sympathizing friends. Mr. A's business was that of a Printer and Photographer. Upon his first arrival in the city his place was at the corner of Alder and Second streets, but latterly he has occupied rooms on Front street, between Morrison and Yamhill streets. Mrs. A. has relatives in San Francisco to whom the inevitable intelligence of the death of her husband was [illegible] lately forwarded. The funeral, as will be seen, takes place this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

THE COURT HOUSE.—The block of ground is now sufficiently excavated for the work of laying the foundation of the new and magnificent Court House for Multnomah County, and the masons are at work. Would not this have been a fitting occasion to inaugurate with the ceremonies appropriate to the laying of a corner stone for an edifice of its dimensions, and expensive construction, as [illegible] for the dispensation of Justice—and will it be [illegible] of when the main building is commenced.

[illegible] COURT.—In the Circuit Court yesterday judgments were rendered in suits against Aaron Leedie as follows: To P. Harbaugh, for $696.01; M. Seller & Co. [illegible]; H. & M. Walters $401; Ostry, Sharf & Co. [illegible]; S. Millwaine & Morse, $266. Against Henry Lowenstein: A. & J. B. Hansen, for $400, Messrs. Hyde, Butler, Failing and Kane as garnishee, also against the same in favor of A. Cohn & Co., $592 59; [illegible] & Co., $1,017 00, which includes all the business [illegible]

[illegible] OF JUSTICE.—In our notice of "heavy weights" [illegible] place, we had to omit our friend Brindle, who [illegible] the world with mail matter so good-natured at the Postoffice. Two hundred and thirty-eight [illegible] would have been a fine addition to the prime lot [illegible] which we told off, and as he feels [illegible] we regret not having had him there [illegible] often wondered if they charged him double [illegible] for staying in the Postoffice, or whether he was [illegible] delivery on the score of "official business." He [illegible] is "male matter," and ought to be appreciated [illegible] estimated by an uncommon weight.

A [illegible] BULLION begins to be active. Our young friend Warren, known as Frank at the Express office, in the [illegible] of messenger, on Monday evening brought down for Wells, Fargo & Co., about three hundred pounds of gold, valued at $50,000. Last evening Mr. [illegible] landed in the vault $12,000 more, and a good [illegible] is expected to-night from Canyon City. We may not look for continued large receipts of the precious metal.

[illegible] SHIPMENT.—The bark A. A. Eldridge, Capt. [illegible], will soon leave for Honolulu. She will take a [illegible] shipment of staves, barrels, &c., from the new [illegible] of Capt. Burns, the first shipment of the [illegible] Portland. In addition she takes produce from [illegible] Haven and produce from Spragueville and lumber from Oak Point. Capt. Williams expects to go to sea on Tuesday.

A FIRE—ALARM.—An alarm of the fire bells of the city brought out the Department in full force last evening. It was occasioned by a burning chimney, in a building corner of Washington and Fourth streets, occupied by Mr. Epperly, as a residence. No damage was done. [illegible] street was in such [illegible] condition that [illegible] No. 2 Company to nearly swamp their Hose Carriage.

[illegible] RECEIPTS.—The boats of the Willamette come well freighted just now. Two cargoes a day from above [illegible] flour, wheat, barley, bacon, &c., which is in consequence of the high water which enables them to penetrate the valley a long way above the water mark. It might last long, however. Two hundred tons have arrived this week.

STOCK AND EXCHANGE.—There were no transactions at the regular evening of the Portland Stock and Exchange Board yesterday, and the report stands as follows:

	Asked	Offered
U. S. legal tender notes	[illegible]	[illegible]
Loan do do	[illegible]	[illegible]
No sales.

SPIRIT WALL.—Strong hopes are entertained of the recovery of the Chinaman, placed in the Insane Asylum on the 24th ult., by Wm. H. Newell, Esq., of the Dalles. The cause of the Celestial's aberration, was a strong attack of "Mint on the brain." Should he fully recover there is hope for several private cases still lingering at the Dalles.

[illegible] MENAGERIE.—The Museum and Menagerie of [illegible] & Co., Riverton, is announced as "last increasing [illegible] than and northern animals, and [illegible] The institution may soon be expected on its winding way through Oregon.

GROVER & BAKER.—William Abernethy, Esq., Agent of the [illegible] Grover & Baker Sewing Machines, is now prepared to fill orders that may arrive for any desired style of them. His advertisement, in another column, sets forth the particulars.

[illegible] TIDY.—We are pleased to learn, by private [illegible] under date of May 4th, that Rev. G. H. Atkinson [illegible] family, also Messrs. Rhodes, Baker, White [illegible] and Johnson, with their families, have arrived [illegible] New York.

[illegible]—By private telegram we are informed that the ship Oregon, Capt. Dall, which left [illegible] for San Francisco via Victoria, on the 24th, reached [illegible] yesterday.

[illegible]—The stone work on Mr. G. W. Vaughn's [illegible] mill, which includes the first story or basement, was completed last evening. The brick [illegible] structure will be commenced on Monday next.

[illegible]—City Marshal Hoyt yesterday finished the sale [illegible] for taxes, as advertised, with the exception of such as he was restrained from disposing of by an injunction, in favor of Messrs. Harris, White and Davenport.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

HAS BEEN USED FOR NEARLY

HALF A CENTURY,

WITH THE MOST ASTONISHING SUCCESS IN CURING

Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Croup, Liver Complaint, Bronchitis, Difficulty of Breathing, Asthma, and every affection of the

THROAT, LUNGS, AND CHEST,

INCLUDING EVEN

CONSUMPTION.

There is scarcely one individual in the community who wholly escapes, during a season, from some one, however slightly developed, of the above symptoms—a neglect of which might lead to the last named, and most to be dreaded disease in the whole catalogue. The power of "medicinal gum" of the Wild Cherry Tree over this class of complaints is well known, so great is the good it has performed, and so great the popularity it has acquired.

In this preparation, besides the virtues of the Cherry, there are commingled with it other ingredients of like value, thus increasing its value ten fold, and forming a Remedy whose power to soothe, to heal, to relieve, and to cure disease, exists in no other medicine yet discovered.

The unequalled success that has attended the application of this medicine in all cases of

has induced many physicians of high standing to employ it in their practice, some of whom advise us of the fact under their own signatures. We have space only for the names of a few of these:—

E. H. FENLEY, M. D., San Francisco, Cal.
E. BOYDEN, M. D., Exeter, Me.
ALEXANDER HATCH, M. D., China, Me.
R. FELLOWS, M. D., Hill, N. H.
W. H. WEBB, M. D., Cape Vincent, N. Y.
W. B. LYNCH, M. D., Auburn, N. Y.
ABRAHAM SKILLMAN, M. D., Boundbrook, N. J.
H. D. MARTIN, M. D., Mansfield, Pa.

The proprietors have letters from all classes of our fellow citizens, from the halls of Congress to the humblest cottage, and even from beyond the seas; for the fame and virtue of WISTAR'S BALSAM have extended to the uttermost bounds of the earth, without any attempt on our part to introduce it beyond the limits of our own country.

TO CALIFORNIANS AND OREGONIANS.

After October 1, 1863, all genuine WISTAR'S BALSAM of WILD CHERRY for the Pacific Coast will be enclosed in a new wrapper which will bear the printed names of both SETH W. FOWLE & CO., Boston, Mass., and JOHN D. PARK, Cincinnati, Ohio, as well as fac-simile of the signatures of "I. BUTTS," "SANFORD & PARK," and "H. WISTAR, M. D."

Cure Your Cold, Save Your Lungs.

NEWELL'S

PULMONARY SYRUP

HAS

CURED THOUSANDS!

And it will Cure You!

"A Cough is generally the effect of a Cold, which has either been improperly treated or entirely neglected. When it proves obstinate there is Always reason to fear the consequences,

as this shows a weak state of the lungs, and is often the forerunner of Consumption.—[Buchanan's Domestic Medicine."

STOP THAT COUGHING!

Some of you can't, and we pity you. You have tried every remedy but the one destined, by its intrinsic merit, to supercede all similar preparations. It is not surprising you should be reluctant to try something else after the many experiments you have made of trashy compounds foisted on the public as a certain cure; but

NEWELL'S

Pulmonary Syrup!

Is really the VERY BEST remedy ever compounded for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Consumption. Thousands of people in California and Oregon have been already benefited by its surprising curative powers.

WHAT KILLED HIM!

Dr. Hall, in his "Journal of Health," speaking of the death of Washington Irving, asks the above question, and adds: "He might have remained with us for some years to come, had it not been for advice, kindly intended, no doubt, but given in thoughtlessness and reckless ignorance.

He Had a Cold

Which, by some injudicious prescription, had been converted into asthma." Let me say to Dr. Hall that that "prescription" was not

NEWELL'S

PULMONARY

SYRUP.

KEEP IT IN THE HOUSE, use it freely, give it to your children upon the slightest indications of a Cold, and you will think and speak of it as all do who have been acquainted with its merits.

Driving Home the Cows

Out of the clover and blue-eyed grass
He turned them into the river-lane;
One after another he let them pass,
Then fastened the meadow bars again.

Under the willows, and over the hill,
He patiently followed their sober pace;
The merry whistle for once was still,
And something shadowed the sunny face.

Only a boy! and his father had said
He never could let his youngest go:
Two already were lying dead
Under the feet of the trampling foe.

But after the evening work was done,
And the frogs were loud in the meadow swamp,
Over his shoulder he slung his gun
And stealthily followed the foot-path damp.

Across the clover and through the wheat
With resolute heart and purpose grim,
Though cold was the dew on his hurrying feet
And the blind bat's flitting startled him.

Thrice since then had the lanes been white,
And the orchards sweet with apple bloom;
And now, when the cows came back at night,
The feeble father drove them home.

For news had come to the lonely farm
That three were lying where two had lain;
And the old man's tremulous, palsied arm
Could never lean on a son's again.

The summer day grew cool and late.
He went for the cows when the work was done;
But down the lane, as he opened the gate,
He saw them coming one by one,—

Brindle, Ebony, Speckle and Bess,
Shaking their horns in the evening wind;
Cropping the buttercups out of the grass,—
But who was it following close behind?

Loosely swung in the idle air
The empty sleeve of army blue;
And worn and pale, from the crisping hair,
Looked out a face that the father knew.

For Southern prisons will sometimes yawn,
And yield their dead unto life again;
And the day that comes with a cloudy dawn
In golden glory at last may wane.

The great tears sprang to their meeting eyes;
For the heart must speak when the lips are dumb;
And under the silent evening skies
Together they followed the cattle home.

The Final Struggle Before Richmond

Cavalry Operations.

Correspondence of the New York Times.

Union Army, Two Miles Southwest of Gravelly Run, Dinwiddie County (Virginia), Saturday, April 1. [illegible] Washington, Sunday, April 2.—A portion of General Sheridan's cavalry had a right smart engagement yesterday afternoon, with Pickett's division of infantry and two divisions of cavalry, respectively commanded by W. H. F. Lee and Fitzhugh Lee, resulting in forcing our line back [illegible] when the enemy was checked by a portion of Custer's division. Our loss in killed and wounded is estimated at about two hundred and fifty. That of the enemy was necessarily much larger because of the reckless manner in which they exposed themselves.

I have got to the point indicated in this letter on my way to reach some kind of communication with the civilized world, and just here unfortunately I am stuck fast in the mud, and at this unseasonable hour making an effort to give the readers of the Times some account of the fight, while sitting on the ground by the roadside by the light of a camp fire and a very short pencil. But to proceed in order.

Yesterday morning everything along our lines was quiet, and, so far as I know, might have remained so during the remainder of the day, but for the confounded rebs. For the supply and ammunition train, guarded by the Third Custer's division, was stuck fast in the mud, equidistant between Dinwiddie Court House and Bowanty river; and moreover, the rain of the night before, together with what had previously fallen, rendered the roads and fields impassable for cavalry. It should be stated in this connection that this country is one vast quicksand, and no sooner does water soften the upper stratum of soil than a bottomless abyss is opened when penetrated by a horse's foot. It should also be stated that [illegible] acres out of every ten are covered by a small young growth of almost impenetrable pines, so common as seen in this section of the country on worn out lands. Now let the reader take Lloyd's map, or a better one if possible, and it will indicate as near as may be the position of our troops.

At one o'clock P. M., when the enemy disturbed their quiet, Smith's brigade of Crook's Second (late Kautz's) Division rested on Stony Creek, south west of Dinwiddie Court house, supported by Gregg's brigade of the same division. Davies' brigade, of the same division, held a position on the same creek, north-westerly of Smith's. Fitzhugh's brigade, of Devin's First Division, continued the line still further north westerly, facing to the south west, and covering a place there near Stony creek, where five roads come together, known as "Five Forks," held by the enemy—a place we tried to take the day before, but did not for obvious reasons. Stagg's Michigan brigade, of the same division, was in position on Gravelly Branch, in a north-easterly direction from Fitzhugh's command, fronting north westerly, and about six miles by the direct road northerly from Dinwiddie Court House. A portion of Gibbs' Third Brigade, of the same division, was in reserve between Stagg's position and the Court house, two miles from the latter point.

If I have made myself understood, it will be seen that the points held by Davies', Fitzhugh's and Stagg's brigades formed the angles of a triangle, the apex being Fitzhugh's brigade. It is desirable that the reader should carefully fix their positions in his mind in order that he may understand what follows—one of the most interesting and instructive series of movements ever made by a cavalry force.

THE ATTACK ON SMITH'S BRIGADE.

At about six o'clock P. M. the enemy attacked Smith's brigade in considerable force, but unsuccessfully. An hour later, Major Robbins, of Davis' Brigade, who held a bridge across Stony creek with a battalion of the First New Jersey, was attacked by a large force of infantry and cavalry, and after a stubborn resistance, when to have remained longer in the place would have been certain destruction, the Major reluctantly ordered his men to fall back, which they did slowly towards their brigade. At this juncture the enemy moved three columns across the creek at many different points, and at once, by superior numbers, was enabled to flank Davis' brigade. After a stubborn fight with the column advancing directly in front, Major Hart, of the First New Jersey, was among those who fell mortally wounded at this time, and he was left in the hands of the enemy. When last seen he was waving one hand, but whether to indicate that he was still alive or to cheer his men on to greater efforts is not known.

Devin, finding that Davies was falling back, sent a staff officer to direct Fitzhugh to change his front to meet the somewhat unexpected change of affairs. When the staff officer reached the Col. he was already quietly preparing for the event so desired, by the facing of his command in a south easterly direction. Stagg, to resist the coming storm, faced the same general direction, and Gibbs' brigade the same.

Davies retreated in echelon, but not in quite so good order as is sometimes seen on a review, for the enemy's cavalry pressed closely, and their superior numbers enabled them to outflank every position taken. The change of position put Fitzhugh on the extreme right instead of the left as at first, of Devin's command, and Stagg, Davies and Gibbs in the order as named from left to right.

The fight continued until 5 P. M., at which time the enemy had cut off Devin, with Fitzhugh's and Stagg's brigades, and forced them back in a northeasterly direction to the Boydtown plank road, a little east of north from Dinwiddie Court house, and in which portion of the command during the evening moved to that place. [illegible] brigade for a long time held its position and made two successful charges, in one of which the First United States [illegible] and the Sixth Pennsylvania drove the enemy's strong line of infantry and captured about one hundred men.

A little event occurred in this charge which shows how little heart the rank and file of the enemy have in their present work. When the charge was made, several hundred men threw down their arms and attempted to rush into our lines. Unfortunately the movement was [illegible] opened into them. This caused a hesitation long enough for the [illegible] to cover them with a [illegible] from the rear.

At the hour mentioned [illegible] had fallen back to within a mile [illegible] [illegible] part of the brigade in the same division [illegible] this time until after dark, Custer had the fight, and the enemy [illegible] hold the ground [illegible]

this was ever a heavy fire had been opened with [illegible]

The Charleston Courier.—There was a rather humorous scene at the office of the Charleston Courier, says a correspondent, when our army took possession of the city. The editor had run away, but the business man remained and hoped to save his property. Col. Woodford called at the office at an early hour, and the following conversation took place:

Col. W.—Whom have I the pleasure of addressing, sir?

Newspaper proprietor.—Mr. L——, sir.

Col. W.—Will you do me the favor, sir, to loan me a sheet of paper.

Mr. L.—(Looking at the Colonel's shoulder straps.) "Certainly, sir."

Col. W.—Thank you, Mr. L——; might I trouble you for pen and ink?

Mr. L.—With pleasure, sir.

Col. W.—[illegible] Really, [illegible] I am sorry to trouble you so much, but this ink won't flow; will you be good enough to get me another bottle?

Mr. L.—"O! certainly, sir; no trouble at all."

Col. W.—(Writes.)

Sam Houston's [illegible]—The New Orleans Times publishes the following:

The following dialogue shows the estimate put some years ago by Gen. Sam Houston, of Texas, upon a Yulee, then Senator from Florida, and Dr. Gwin, then a Senator from California, both of whom are now rebels, and the latter of whom has been engaged quite recently in an unsuccessful political intrigue in Mexico.

LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD, heals the irritated parts, gives strength to the digestive organs, brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies), or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it, if only taken in time.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle.
